

CHURCHES HERE START LENTEN SERVICES TODAY

Churches of every denomination represented in Warren begin today, Ash Wednesday, some observance of the Lenten season, continuing through the next five weeks and culminating in the Holy Week devotion which immediately precedes the resurrection festival, Easter Sunday.

In churches of the Roman Catholic faith, ashes were distributed to worshippers this morning and this custom will be repeated at tonight's worship periods. Stations of the Cross and other services will be continued regularly through the coming weeks.

Protestant churches, in many instances, held devotions this morning and will begin special series of sermons and studies on the life and passion of Christ, at tonight's midweek services.

Social events of any prominence are dispensed with during the coming weeks and meetings and devotions generally center about the Lenten theme.

COUGHS DUE TO COLD

Piso's PLUS-ACTION! Explodes Theory That Cough Medicine Only Soothes Your Throat!

The very first spoonful of Piso's brings soothing comfort to your irritated throat membranes. But you also get an important plus-action in this modern formula Piso's.

"Piso's actually stimulates your system to produce more protective secretions in your throat and upper bronchial passages. These normal fluids thin and liquefy thick, clogging phlegm... it's more easily flushed away... your cough is 'loosened'."

Depend on Piso's (Pie-so's)... not for its local "throat-soothing" action alone... but for its more important inside-working systemic effect. Piso's is good for adults and children. At all drugists in 35c-60c bottles.

B. W. E. MCKENNEY, America's Card Authority, in this third hand selected by Bobby McPherran, in which he has employed the McPherran no trump convention, the two-club semi-forcing response was used North's two-club bid showed about three tricks and said "Partner, if you have the sub-minimum type of hand, we can make a game. However, if you have the weak type of hand and your suit is clubs you can pass otherwise I would like to have you bid your suit."

South, holding the sub-minimum type of hand, must respond in no trump. If he were to bid two no trump over two clubs his partner might believe he was on a pure psychic and could pass. As South's sub-minimum hand was of good no trump distribution and what we term an average hand, he correctly jumped the contract to three no trump.

After West's unlucky opening lead, the eight of spades won the trick. South led a diamond to the king which was allowed to hold the trick. Dummy returned a spade to the king and South led another diamond. This time East took the queen with the ace.

East led the deuce of clubs, which South ducked and West won with the king. Declarer took the precaution of playing the jack from dummy so as to unblock for the finesse. West exited with a spade.

When all spades and diamonds were cashed the adverse discarding could not conceal the fact that West held the heart strength. A finesse against the jack of hearts gave declarer four-odd.

Departure of Company I Recalls Other Farewells to Local Unit

The departure this evening of the members of Company I 112th Infantry for Indian town, Gap where they will start their year of service in the U. S. Army recalls other occasions when the people of Warren have said farewells to the unit.

Organized shortly before 1890 the local National Guard unit then a part of the 16th Pennsylvania Infantry first saw active duty in the Homestead strike of 1892 according to records available. Returning from that distance the company did not see active service again until the outbreak of the Spanish-American War.

Members of Company I left Warren on April 27, 1898 for service in that conflict, going with the regiment to Mount Gretna where they were mustered into the federal service May 10 of that year. The men served throughout the Porto Rico campaign being mustered out of service on December 28, 1898.

Returning to National Guard status the company remained here until 1916 when it was called to

LONG CAME CINDERELLA

By VIVIEN GREY

YESTERDAY: Roger Cosgrave came to see he has his work cut out for him. He has forsaken Emily Perry to marry Lovely Daye, a girl from the tenements whose beauty swept him off his feet. On their Mexican honeymoon, Lovely has danced much with a young Mexican named Pedro, and now Pedro has left Lovely, his heart broken. And Roger fears tragedy.

Chapter 20
Two Tragedies

TAKE me back to the cottage, Roger," Lovely said dully. "Take me back."

Roger didn't ask what had happened. He didn't have to.

Next morning, up earlier than usual, they heard the news about Pedro from the pretty maid who added about in bare feet, caring for their cottage. Pedro had killed himself the night before.

At noon Roger and Lovely stood on the cliff above the ocean. "You were right, Roger," she said as she finished the story of what had happened at the night club. "You always are. How do you keep your life so sane and steady and poised all of the time?"

Roger didn't answer. It would have been cruel to say what he thought just then. "Take me home, Roger," she said softly. "Take me home to your mother. I want to see her."

So they did not meet the Perrys in Mexico. But they heard of them the day Roger brought Lovely home, more beautiful than ever with her skin gorgeously tanned by Mexican sun. A more worldly look in her large brown eyes lent them an extra enchantment. She was somehow smooth and polished. Travel and possession of enough money to do exactly as she wished had given her assurance.

That day Roger and Lovely walked into his mother's sitting room, and Marcia looked up from her New York paper with a cry of alarm on her lips.

"Oh, Roger look!" were her first words. "Poor Emily! Now I know why they went in that worn-out old car. They planned it. They must have. How horrible!"

"What is it?" There was a tense note in Roger's voice. He took the paper from his mother and glanced at the headlines. Lovely watched his face grow pale and saw a strange glow come into his eyes.

"We must get in touch with Emily and have her come here," Marcia said. "I see it all now. That's why Della was so anxious about Emily."

"Poor Emily," Roger said gently. "Yes, we must have her here." Then his mother's voice came quickly again. "Lovely darling! Forgive me! and she held out her arms to the girl, who went into them gratefully. "I'm so glad to have you and Roger back. Good! And how much more beautiful you are!"

Roger took Marcia in his arms then. "And it's good to be home, mother." A deep note of happiness ran through his words.

Lovely caught in Roger had sent her deep into his home soil. She had nothing like that. There had been no soil to take root in, in any of the places her life had known. Walking through the wide and pleasant hall toward the stair Lovely was oppressed by a sense of lack, of loneliness. No reason at all she felt like an outsider.

But upstairs in the suite Marcia had given them the weight lifted. "Your mother's sweet, Roger," she said. "It's sweet of her to have done this," taking in the beauty of the sitting room that had been done over with her comfort in mind.

"Mother's always that way," Roger said. "She loves doing things for people. That's been her life. Just the lovely, social side of things."

Then with one of her lightning changes of mood Lovely demanded: "Love me much as ever?"

"Darling, can't you see?" Roger asked. "I'm as helpless as an oyster on the half shell before your charms!"

"What was it about Emily? Why is she coming here?" Lovely asked then.

Bitter Truth

ROGER hesitated. He found it difficult to talk about Emily. "Her mother and father have committed suicide," he said slowly. "Right there within a stone's throw of our honeymoon cottage. Or at least it looked like suicide. No one will ever know, really."

"But I thought they were vacationing?"

"So they were and that's when they did it. On their vacation right there in Acapulco where we were. They drove right through the center of town, and just kept on going."

Lovely's eyes widened with horror. "You mean," she started to ask. "But that cliff! Why they couldn't?"

"That's just it. They did. They kept on going."

Lovely read every word of the story with its screaming headlines. She had all of the tabloids brought in and sat looking at the pictures of Emily, her mother and father. Of their estate so close by. She read over and over again how their big car had clumped up the hill.

She read how it passed the brow and plunged into the little park with the natives calling to them to stop. They had bounced over the concrete wall. Observers said they sat like two people carved in marble. Only the car seemed alive as it gathered speed. There was no sound from them as they went over the cliff.

The heavy car dropped to the ledge below, shattering a concrete wall. But the two people in it were catapulted into the water that dashed and churned on the rocks below. Their bodies had not been found.

"But why? Why would they do a thing like that?" Lovely asked Roger insistently. "I can't see any reason just because their daughter didn't marry the man she intended to. Lots of engagements are broken. Engagements don't mean so much."

And Roger could only say: "I wouldn't know, angel. I wouldn't know."

"I feel almost as if I'd killed them," Lovely said. She shivered slightly as she stood at the window and looked out over the beauty of the Cosgrave place with shrubbery and trees beginning to hint of fall.

"You shouldn't, honey bee," Roger put his arm around her and rested his cheek against her hair. "You had nothing to do with it. People make their own lives."

Lovely turned to him impulsively. "Oh, Roger—if you should ever stop loving me—want someone else?"

His kiss silenced whatever else she would have said. "That time will never come," he said solemnly.

Lovely dressed for dinner that night. Roger glanced at her in surprise. He'd forgotten to tell her they didn't dress for family dinner in the country. And she looked so beautiful that it made it right. Lovely had a gift for clothes that would enchant a masculine public. She knew instinctively how to wear them.

And she loved them with something that was more than vanity. Roger was grateful to Marcia when he saw that she had put on something extra. She must, he realized, have been aware that Lovely was dressing and so had tactfully dressed herself. That would be Marcia.

Cosgrave looked a trace startled at the magnificence of his ladies and then complimented them both.

"That was sweet of your father," Lovely said afterwards to Roger. "I mean to compliment your mother." It shed light on a different life, this middle-aged man still saying pleasant, complimentary things.

That evening Lovely trailed Roger about the place. She went to the kennels with him for a last look at the Bedingtons and Kerry Blues. She brushed their soft coats and was pleased by the adoration in their soft brown eyes as they looked up at her.

She picked up Streak's puppies, limp with sleep, and cooed over them. Roger watched, pleased.

"Streak's honoring you," he said. "She wouldn't let many people pick up one of her babies. She's a very careful mother."

Late Visitors

IT was later that night the cards mother. A lovely had sent her friends announcing the date of her homecoming bore fruit.

The Cosgrave mansion was wrapped in the shadows of night and the silence of sleep as a car turned uncertainly in the drive.

"This is the place," a voice asked out of the darkness. "Yeah! Look at them gates! Lovely sure got herself a sweet set up!"

"Ye-ah boy! When Lovely sees us!"

The car picked up speed. A second one turned into the drive and then a third. They began a great honking, a sort of rhythmic salute. Voices in hilarious song broke sharply into the soft stillness of early autumn night.

And the singing gathered in volume until it rose raucously under the windows of the Cosgrave mansion.

In the house Lovely stirred in her sleep. Her dream of the old days in the city had been so vivid that she had actually heard voices. She listened. She wasn't dreaming. It dawned on her slowly. Those were real voices she heard.

She slipped out of bed and went to the window. Leaning out she called brightly: "Hi-yah! Hi-yah gang!"

She turned back to Roger then. He was sitting up in bed, his night light on. He had intended saying he'd go down and ask them to come back some other time for their party, but the frank delight on Lovely's face stayed the words.

Lovely was pulling on a soft velvet robe, fastening a large ornamental buckle at her slim waist when Marcia's voice spoke at their door.

"Roger what is it?" she asked. "Some friends of Lovely's?"

Roger said quietly: "The kids!" Lovely's voice rippled with happiness. "I'm going down to let them in. Hurry darling. Hurry!"

Roger was getting up slowly. "I suppose must," he said grinning ruefully at his mother. "But you go back to bed, dear."

"I'll do nothing of the kind, Roger," Marcia said brightly. She was smiling at her son. "I'm going down and meet them and rustle up something for them to eat. They're Lovely's friends. If they've come from the city they've had a long ride and they'll be hungry."

Around New York

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—There used to be a little Frenchman named Herbert (pronounced A-bare) who had a pet shop on Park Avenue and who was a sort of veterinarian on the side, though he admittedly didn't know much about it and finally gave up his practice and devoted his time exclusively to selling dogs.

His ancestors must have been circus ballyhoo artists, for he had a wonderful spiel, and after he lost his shop he used to stand around in front of night clubs and hotels with puppies in his coat pockets and in his arms, giving eloquent oral appreciations of man's most faithful friend and enumerating their qualities.

If it happened that he was selling Scotties he would have a perfectly marvelous song and dance about the superior qualities of these animals as against setters, spaniels and Boston bulls. But if he happened to be selling bulldogs or bird dogs he had an equally glib sales talk in their favor. He used always to wind up comparing dogs against cats, which were "insolent, cold, vicious, ungrateful, and altogether selfish."

WELL, Herbert finally dropped out of sight and I didn't see him again until one night about two years ago. To my surprise he had a basket of kittens on his arm, which he swore were full-blooded Angoras and which he was retailing for $3 per. "One of the discouraging things about life as we live it today," he told me, "is that people cannot, or will not, realize what incomparable companions cats are. They are the kings of the earth. They personify grace. They are not subservient as dogs are. They do not grovel and lick your hands after you beat them, as dogs do. Cats have a pride and a loftiness of character that many of us would do well to copy. They are affectionate and clean. They are the world's finest pets."

Dragons, Owls And Johnnies Still Tied For Loop Lead

Locals Chalk Up 16 Points In Last Canto To Top Wolves, 40-35

GREENBERG MAY Sugar Grove Assured SIGN CONTRACT Loop Playoff Berth WITH UNCLE SAM By Trousing Kinzua

Outplayed for three quarters of an all-important game by a scrappy bunch of Wolves, Warren High's Dragons last night put on one of the greatest hardwood finishes the North League has ever seen to drop the hilltoppers on their own court, 40-35, and remain in a three-way deadlock for first place.

Bradford and Johnsonburg both came through in the clutch, the Owls trouncing the Red Devils at Emporium, 42-21, and the Jays edging Ridgway at Ridgway, 31-26.

Primed for the meeting with their ancient rivals, Kane was definitely "up" and kept the local taggers darting aimlessly hither and yon throughout the third quarter. At the end of the third quarter the Gentlemen coached squad had the Dragons trailing by a 31-24 count. "Sting" Brown put the Dragons within five points of the Wolves with a long shot which used the board. Tucker gave local fans a ray of hope as he dribbled in and lifted the leather through the net, but Pitt duplicated for the Kane quintet and the margin was again five points.

After a melee under the basket, Tucker rapped in a double-decker, and when Conroy took a quick pass from the redhead and scored from beneath the hoop, Warren stock again went sky high. Bob Wright went into the ball game in place of Hoffecker, and started off by missing a five footer. Johnny Pick tapped in a field goal and Warren went ahead to stay as Andrews slipped one in from the side and Tucker scored a peep shot. Andrews cut loose a long one for Kane, but as the final whistle sounded, Wright tallied for the Dragons to protect the five-point advantage.

Conroy, who added to his already astounding season total with 18 points, got nine of them in the first quarter and kept the Dragons ahead at the end of the period by a single point. Pick contributed another double counter and Tucker hit the net twice on foul shots.

Tucker's field goal and Hoffecker's foul shot were the only local tallies in the second period, while the Wolves counted three field goals and a like number of fouls to take a 21-16 lead at half-time. The Wolves protected well into the last quarter.

"Red" Tucker picked up twelve points for the Dragons and Pick contributed four. Wright two, Hoffecker one and Brown two.

Mayo, Larson, Andrews and Spineck divided scoring honors for the Wolves.

Just before Johnny Pick scored his basket which put the Dragons in front for keeps, local fans experienced one bitter disappointment. Tucker dribbled in and scored two baskets in rapid succession, both of which were ruled out by Referee Brady who charged the local guard with traveling.

The Dragons now need a victory over winless Sheffield here Friday night to secure a spot in the second-half playoffs. Johnsonburg and Bradford are expected to cop their engagements with St. Marys and Emporium, respectively, on the leaders' courts.

When New York Yankee pitcher Vernon Gomez retires as a smoke ball, he wants to become a smoke cuter. Here he gets a tryout as a back-seat driver on a hook and ladder truck at St. Petersburg, Fla., where the Yankees are in spring training.

SPORT SCATTERINGS
by Bill Rice

You can't take a thing away from Kane on the basis of last night's showing. Those Wolves, who like nothing better than Dragon meat for a main course, really put up a battle and it took every ounce of reserve power the Blue and White could muster to turn back the hilltoppers and stay in the race.

Joe Haver, of the Kane Republican, who has seen the Wolves in most of their North League engagements, commented that the Kane lads were playing better ball than he had seen them exhibit previously, and they had certainly improved 75 per cent since we last caught one of their exhibitions. They held the upper hand until the Dragons switched defenses and harried them to the point where they lost their poise and confidence and let the local courtsters through the gate. It was quite a ball game from every angle, and there wasn't a deep breath taken by local fans until Conroy slipped in the basket the game on ice, after Johnny Pick had scored the bucket which finally put our side in the van.

There were some long faces among the more enthusiastic members of the Kane faculty, one of whom admitted after the game that if the Wolves could have beaten Warren it would have been a successful season, regardless of their league standing. Tsk, tsk! Coach Vic Gentilman paid the Blue and White a nice compliment which was greatly appreciated by coaches and players when he said his boys enjoyed meeting Warren because the Dragons played a fast, clean, sportsmanlike brand of ball. "There's a nice lot of friendly feeling between the squads," Vic commented, "which means a lot more than winning or losing a ball game." And Kenny Mayo, Wolfe ace, and a couple of other varsity men who were within earshot added assenting voices. Kane is now definitely out of the race, but they came within a hair's breadth of living up to their reputation as giant killers, and plenty of us were convinced they had upset the apple cart again when the clock on the wall said minutes to play and the Wolves still out in front.

Eddie Moffatt, captain of the Bradford Owls and this bureau's choice for one of the two guard posts on the all-Northern League team, is no longer a member of the 1941 edition and will not be with the Bradford club in the playoffs. Moffatt, so we learned last night, couldn't live up to the training rules and was dropped from the team on the eve of the Emporium game. Normally, the loss of as capable a performer as Eddie would lead one to believe that the team would be sorely handicapped, but the Emracemen operated without him against the Red Devils and had little difficulty in hanging up a 42-21 victory. Bucky Poling moves into a regular guard spot, with Harold Withen; Fred Filling will be at center and Jimmy Barry and Ralph Benson at the forward spots. Dominic Frisina and Big Jim Nelson, who have seen plenty of service this year, will be alternates and make a couple of pretty strong reserves. However, our two glimpses of Moffatt gave us the idea that he was a pretty strong cog in that Owl machine, and it seems hard to believe that his absence won't be noticed.

YEARS AGO IN SPORT

February 26, 1921.—Scoring ten points to one for the visitors in the last quarter, Warren High last night noised out Jamestown 31-27 on the local court. Howard Potts scored 19 points and Lloyd Woodard counted six in the victory.

February 26, 1931.—Taft, Burgett and Bob Schindler were the only Warren wrestlers who could win matches as the Westfield 0-10 in the local match. Taft and Burgett won by falls, while Schindler gained a time advantage.

Sports Round-up

BY EDDIE BRIETZ
New York, Feb. 26.—Jack Dempsey and Arlene Judge are doing the hula in various night spots.

John Munski, Missouri's "graduate miler," hasn't won a race since adopting a sweat suit with No. 13 on it. Georgia has begun practice for its football cheer leaders. Jock Sutherland is trekking through the South interviewing "sleepers" who escaped the National League draft list.

Whoops And Hoops
Here's one monopoly you can't blame on Mike Jacobs. Appanoosa County, Ia., just has named its all-county girls' cage team as follows:

Forwards: Eva Tomsetich Numa, Kathryn Yakovich Rathbun, Mildred Zunic Numa.
Guards: Eleanor Lira, Numa, Agnes Matkovich Rathbun, Mamie Kauzlarich Numa.

Short, Short Stories
Although Frankie Kovacs cleared up nearly everything in Florida, smart tennis men are going out on the look for him yet. They say his game was made for clay courts, and that Rogers and McNeill and the gang will make him holier uncle when they get him on the grass. We just have finished Al Schacht's book, "Clowning Through Baseball," and we laughed so much it made our tonsils worse. Pat O'Brien, the movie star, and Fritz Crisler of Michigan will attend the welcoming dinner to Coach Tom Stidham at Marquette tomorrow night. Ed McKeever, who shifted from Boston College to Notre Dame, with Frank Leahy (but who may, and officiating.

Sports Cocktail
On a quiz program the other night Bill Tifon was asked the size of a tennis ball—and didn't know it. When the Southern Conference cage tourney gets underway at Raleigh tomorrow, Paul Menton, sports editor of the Baltimore Evening Sun, will be refereeing for the 13th time since 1926, the ninth year in a row since the meet was moved from Atlanta after the conference split its territory in 1933. Latest name to be mentioned in connection with the Boston College job Duke Nelson, who won 7 of 8 for Rensselaer Poly last year. The Duke of Windsor will referee an exhibition golf match at Nassau next month in which Bobby Jones and Tommy Armour will play Gene Sarazen and Walter Hagen.

Ouch And Double Ouch
Marty Peters, basketball coach at St. Benedict's College, has been taking a course in physical education. Of course, a journal like this could not print what he said when they gave him a "D" on the course entitled "Basket Ball Rules and Officiating."

GREENBERG MAY Sugar Grove Assured SIGN CONTRACT Loop Playoff Berth WITH UNCLE SAM By Trousing Kinzua

Detroit, Feb. 26 (AP)—A draft board official estimated today that Henry Greenberg, the Detroit Tiger slugger, might be wearing an army uniform sometime in May.

William H. Wells, chief clerk of Board No. 23 with which Greenberg is listed, said the Tiger outfielder would be sent a notice to take a physical examination in 10 days or two weeks.

The board yesterday placed Greenberg in Class 1, and a physical examination will determine whether he will rate Class 1-1 or class 1-2. In the former division he would be pronounced physically fit and available for immediate general military service.

Wells estimated that if Greenberg is placed in Class 1A, he would probably be called for induction sometime in May.

The board refused to place Greenberg in Class 2 deferred because of occupation although the Tiger outfielder said in his questionnaire that "it is my opinion that my classification should be Class 2 because my years of earning power are limited and one year out of action will reduce my effectiveness considerably."

But draft officials said Class 2 deferment requests must come from a draftee's employer, and the Detroit Baseball Co. has indicated it will not ask deferments for players.

LOCAL MAN RANKS AMONG TOP GUNNERS

According to a release received today from the National Rifle Association at Washington, D. C., Sheridan Brown of Warren ranks 19th in the 1941 rifle classification of high shooting averages of Pennsylvania marksmen.

Brown has an average of 99.21 and is the only local marksman in the select group.

Ammon R. Bell of Hummelstown, Pa., had the highest average of any Pennsylvania shooter during 1940. Bell's average of 99.52 was higher by .03 than the mark of Roy A. Rock of Bradford.

The Darling Jewelers continued on their merry City League way last night at the Arcade with a three-pointer over the Busy Bee, picking up one game on the second place Texas Lunch team which split even with the Smoke Shop.

The Warren Baking Co. smashed the Vets for three and stepped ahead of the Smoke Shop. In the fourth match the 3-G Oils took a trio from the Recreation Center.

"Pike" Hultman took care of the individual marks with 254 and 612.

The Youngs and the Millers collided at the Conewago Club and the latter copped three, taking total pins by only 35. The 17 Keglers could only muster a pair of 300 scores, Kenny Bjers hitting 538 for the Millers and Karl Nichols collecting 517 pins for the Youngs. Each rolled a 192 game to tie for high single.

Tonight the Ericksons meet up with the Yergs, and following that match the Big Five takes on the doctors, who have finally issued another challenge, probably influenced by the news that Harry Conarro is out of the city.

Due to Company T's departure on tonight, 7 o'clock matches at the Elks have been postponed. These are Times Square vs. Simonson's and Soda Mineral vs. Lewis Market.

unconscious at the hospital since last Christmas Eve. A machine in which she was riding crashed into a pole, killing the driver and injuring her so critically that physicians feared she would die within a few hours.

Miss Stevenson's insensibility is so deep, they said, that no anesthetic was necessary for the last operation. The skull was opened on the left side and a quantity of fluid was drained off. No blood clot was found.

At the same time, the legislators learned from the navy's top-ranking Admiral Harold R. Stark that while transfer of more destroyers to Britain on the scale suggested by Wendell L. Willkie would not be advisable "at the moment" the government's hands should not be tied in the matter.

Both statements were made public by the House appropriations committee in connection with the fourth supplemental defense appropriation bill.

which the $1,000,000 housing program had been conducted. Congress heard that General George C. Marshall considers an invasion less imminent than a year ago when, he said, this country would have been in a "somewhat helpless plight" had control of the Atlantic "passed to an enemy."

Strikes by CIO unionists continued against Cluett, Peabody and Company plants at Troy, N. Y., Leominster, Mass., and Atlanta, Ga. About 2,300 employees were reported idle, and army shirt-making orders were being held up.

The Worcester (Mass.) Pressed Steel Company, with a million dollars worth of defense orders, reported last night that 200 of its 300 employees had walked out after a wage dispute. The firm makes shell casings and parts for war planes and machine guns.

British RAF bombers, escorted by waves of fighting planes, roared across the channel in British sunlight today, headed for such areas as Dunkerque, Boulogne, Calais and Cap Gris Nez, France—after RAF night raiders had smashed at industrial targets in the Ruhr and airdromes in France.

Of the night raids, "separate attacks were also made on the invasion ports of Dunkerque, Boulogne and Calais," a London Air Ministry communique said.

Hitler's High Command said German night raiders bombed the ports of Harwich and Great Yarmouth, and armament factories at Ipswich and Norwich.

In the Far East, neutral observers expressed belief tension was easing, and that Japan would mark time in her southward expansion pending decisive action in the European war zone.

Reiterated suggestions from the United States and Britain that negotiations of those two countries leave for home still stood, however, and hundreds were sailing.

Although Japanese mediators in the Thailand-French Indo-China border dispute said they believed settlement was near, France increased her military forces in her Far Eastern colony by landing a boatload of naval, army, and air officers. They were sent from Senegal, West Africa.

President Scored By Wheeler

"rubber stamp" a declaration of war. Nye, in the address he prepared to open the Senate's ninth day of general debate, also charged that the United States navy already is compiling information pertaining to operations on the mainland of Asia.

Nye was the second opposition speaker in twenty-four hours to mention the Far East in arguments against the bill. Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.) told the Senate yesterday that an unnamed member of England's parliament had forecast America's entry into the war soon "probably by way of the Orient."

While public discussion progressed, supporters of the British aid bill were endeavoring to enlist the influence of Secretary of State Hull against Senator Ellender's (D-La.) proposal that the bill be amended to stipulate that it conferred no additional powers on the president to send American troops out of the western hemisphere, except to U. S. possessions.

Ellender, who claims that 56 senators have promised to vote for his amendment, told reporters it was obvious to him that strong administration pressure was being brought to bear to defeat his proposal.

In the general debate on the bill Nye picked up his arguments where he was interrupted by the Senate's recess last night.

Detroit, Feb. 26.—(P)—R. J. Thomas, president of the United Automobile Workers-CIO, said today that the union had filed a notice of intent to strike at the Rouge Highland Park and Lincoln plants of the Ford Motor Co. with the State Labor Mediation Board.

Washington, Feb. 26.—(P)—Secretary Wickard announced today that amendments to the federal milk marketing program in New York approved overwhelmingly by dairymen in a referendum last week, would become effective March 1.

Washington, Feb. 26.—(P)—Senator Chandler (D-Ky.) accused opponents of the British aid measure today of "trying to undermine the confidence of the American people in their president" and Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.) angrily retorted in Senate debate that the president was trying to "flim-flam the public."

their presence would not alter the SWOC's position unless the company agrees to negotiate or grants its demands.

He announced the union will not be responsible for any steel spoilage after 9 p. m. (EST) tonight, asserting he has notified company officials of the strike deadline.

SWOC estimates of the number of men suspended here are from 600 to 1,000. The firm in a recent notice said the men, by work stoppages in the coke oven department, had damaged equipment.

Meanwhile, Governor Herbert H. Lehman appealed to the union and the company to maintain the "status quo" so "reasonable men" be given the federal conciliators to carry out their efforts and to keep the "wheels of national defense industry" turning.

But while storm clouds gathered over the Bethlehem properties, settlement of a two-week strike was announced at the Motor Wheel Corporation, Lansing, Mich.

The 2,600 AFL-United Automobile Workers who walked out delayed work on $4,000,000 in defense contracts voted to accept new contract terms and go back to work today.

Their decision enabled the Packard Motor Company at Detroit to resume production. That firm's 7,500 automotive employees had been laid off because of a wheel shortage.

An incipient dispute at the Ford Motor Company in the same city quieted after 40 glass employees were returned to work.

UNEMPLOYMENT RELIEF ISSUE NEAR SOLUTION

BULLETIN
Harrisburg, Feb. 26.—(P)—The general assembly—in session for two months—passed its first bill today, an act appropriating $14,500,000 to finance relief until the end of the biennium on May 31.

By The Associated Press
Harrisburg, Feb. 26.—The legislature solved its immediate problem of unemployment relief, and turned toward the next most important objective of the 1941 session—national defense.
